Hi Jayne--

Generally I think our (at least program staff) thinking is similar. However, based on guidance from our attorney's, we adopted a finer review process...only partially withholding lines/para. within docs and releasing the non-controversial content. This of course, will take more time to redact pieces and parts of everything. I've attached a few docs so you get a sense of the direction we were heading. The highlighted sections are what staff had recommended to be withheld as of last fall. However, since our proposed decision doc is now out in the public realm, some of the items that were pre-decisional last fall, likely would be releasable now.

We can discuss on the call but perhaps the best approach is for EPA and NOAA to carve out a day or two to go through our documents together? That way we won't have to re-review to make sure we actually reached the same conclusions on what is releasable or not.

The focus of this call will be to discuss general principles and examples of types of documents that will be released vs withheld (see below for examples). Also to develop a process and schedule.

Examples:

Withheld

- Key Messages on Oregon NPS Program Under CZARA (for internal management)
- NOAA & EPA Preliminary Decisions on Information Submitted by Oregon to Address Remaining Conditions -- draft versions
- Key Items Raised in NWEA correspondence pertaining to Agr – numerous versions
- Draft Email to State on draft rationales
- Additional MMs for Forestry—what we are seeking—drafts
- Chart on All CWA litigation/SA with NWEA
- Legal Options

Nonresponsive

- Vacation schedules
- Workload analyses

Release

- CZARA Schedule and Timeline
- Chart requesting additional information first completed internally and then used to request information from DEQ

Questionable

- Draft Tribal Consultation Letters (drafts included percentage of funds to be withheld & that information was removed on the final version)
- ESA discussions
- When penalties are discussed
- OWW Highlights where OR CZARA is discussed
- WA CZARA buffer discussions
